DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 45 and 47 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 45 and 47 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Bruckman (U.S. Patent No. 6,891,855) in view of AAPA (Applicant Admitted Prior Art).

Bruckman discloses that a method to manage packet fragmentation, comprising:
determining an operating parameter for a packet, wherein the operating parameter represents a current data rate, maximum permitted delay set by user, and a priority level of a packet (high or low priority), i.e., a dynamic fragmenter (28 in FIG 1) determines a priority level of a packet (high or low priority) and the current data rate (col. 5., lines 6-24);

determining a packet fragment size using the current data rate and the maximum permitted delay (see the equation in col. 5, lines 10-11), if the packet has a low priority.

However, Bruckman teaches one type of low priority (the maximum permitted delay has one value 5 ms at each data rate, see TABLE 1 in col. 5) when Dynamic fragmentation is implemented.

AAPA (specification page 9, lines 16-17) teaches that a packet fragment size is typically dependent upon connection speed (data rate) and priority level of packets.

Those of skill in the art would have been motivated by AAPA to incorporate a plurality of priority levels for the low packets of Bruckman with a corresponding maximum permitted delay (less maximum permitted delay for higher priority level) for each data rate (connection speed) to control queue delay more efficiently, wherein it is inherent that the packet fragment size decreases as the priority level increases (the maximum permitted delay is decreases) or the packet fragment size increases as the priority level decreases (the maximum permitted delay is increases).

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art to incorporate a plurality of priority levels for the low priority packets of Bruckman to control queue delay more efficiently.

Allowable Subject Matter

4. Claims 3-8, 10-14, 17-19, 22-24, 27, 31-39 are allowed.

Claims 46 and 48 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
